All vets are welcome at 8.30pm to
Karin Mueller's three part presentation on:

On-farm fluid therapy: when & how

Fluid therapy: In part 1, Karin will cover indications and logistics of on-farm fluid therapy including the key principles of IVFT, and blood and plasma transfusion.

Dealing with urolithiasis in sheep and camelids

Obstructive urolithiasis is a common medical problem in small ruminants and camelids. Its diagnosis together with medical and surgical treatment options and control will be covered in part 2 of Karin's presentation.

Top tips for your first camelid cases

Camelid Cases: The 3rd part of Karin's presentation will be a whistle-stop tour of tips how to make a decent job of your first camelid cases.

Speaker Biography : Karin Mueller

Starting with a farm animal residency at Liverpool University after graduating in Germany, Karin has worked with ruminants and camelids in private practice and vet schools in the UK and New Zealand. After heading up the farm animal section at Cambridge for several years, she returned to Liverpool in 2013. Her interests span reproduction, internal medicine, abdominal surgery and husbandry. Karin is an RCVS and European specialist in bovine health, and strongly involved in the CertAVP and DBR programmes at Liverpool. Her current research involves a major project on beef cattle lameness, facial expression pain scoring, and drone technology for animal monitoring. She co-authored the book Goat Medicine & Surgery published in 2018.
